

INCREASING EPL EXPOSURES

The economic downturn has not hit all industries equally. Attorney firms specializing in employment litigation have seen something of a boom. This article recently published in a Pittsburgh newspaper indicates that law firms are staying busy with employment related litigation. In particular, there has been a steady increase in litigation following downsizing or layoffs. Even private companies with less than 150 employees are being affected.

The Executive Liability team at Van Gilder is available to discuss insurance products designed to address this and other related litigation. Companies who purchase Employment Practices Liability insurance coverage may have loss prevention and loss reduction services provided as an added feature to the EPL policy. Companies that do not purchase Employment Practices Liability insurance are placing their balance sheets and the financial health of their companies at risk.
